

I think that satellite radio providers should be able to broadcast traffic, weather, and programming that it's customer demand. Since purchasing satellite radio I hardly ever listen to normal broadcast. I do not like being subject to commercials and what other decide what I should listen or not listen too. I like having a choice.

If standard broadcasters want to gain market share, they should change format to what listener's wants instead of using government regulation to squash the competition.